Class History

This is a story of a heroic group of people who fought the battle of high school and emerged victorious. Whence they came and whither they are going seems to be a deep dark mystery.

The faculty members have put their best sleuths on the track to try to trace down the lineage of this heroic senior class. Their past seems to be doubtful and uncertain.

After searching all the valuable documents in the Library of Congress, and taking senior fingerprints and measurements of senior heads, certain conclusions have been reached about this group of seniors.

Judging from the color of their hair, and the size of their feet, it is thought that they must have had their start in school life some years ago when they entered the first grade of the Woodston Grade school.

Several locks of hair were found hanging to the desks in the first grade room which match the hair of certain seniors. Many footprints were found underneath other footprints when acid was applied to the floor to bring out the faintly discerned tracks.

The tracks were followed to the second grade room door--and then the bloodhounds were put on to take up the trail. They seemed to lose it. However, an old grade book bears evidence that this same group went into the third grade.

From that point the chain of evidence seems to dim until along about the time that a high school teacher found a group of students which answer the discription of the present seniors sitting in her classrooms. So it is thought that perhaps this same group arrived at high school by way of the eighth grade. Nothing is certain, though, as the class is very elusive.

In talking to a junior the other day it was learned that a textbook he used had once had the name of Jacque Westwood in the front of it. Using microscopes and comparing again the fingerprints lines, it has been concluded that the seniors at one time inhabited the classrooms of the freshmen. Head measurements though, seem to bear out the fact that the freshmen at that time must have had somewhat smaller heads than the present seniors.

There is evidence that the seniors were once juniors in this high school. For the school's stories tell of a class who last year staged a wonderful banquet for the graduating class. This points to the seniors for the juniors of this year will bear evidence that seniors are great eaters. They found that out at the banquet they gave the seniors.

There is much discussion as to whether this class ever took the regular sophomore subjects in this high school. Faculty members state that they could never have gotten from the freshmen to the junior year under their watchful eyes without taking the sophomore work. Knowing the faculty as we do--we think they are right--so the seniors must have been sophomores at one time.

It is known that the collective height of the seniors is 71 feet and 5 inches, the combined weight is 1,735 pounds, there are 5 blondes 8 brunettes. There are 8 young women and 5 young men, 3 first string basketball players and 3 made the football squad this season. It is known that their scholarship ranks high at the present time, and that the seniors regard themselves by far the most brilliant class in school.

But, alas--as dim as their distant past is--just so uncertain and unknown is their future. So it may be that it would be a good idea to put the most persistent detectives on their trails to follow them out into the world--for they are bound to leave their footprints everywhere they go--and they expect to go everywhere in a big way. Thus, we bring our story to a close--sorry that we have been unable to tell you much about the mystery of the senior's past--their present you know-and that their future will also have to remain a mystery unless some fortune teller would delve into their future.

Class Will

We the Senior Class of 1951 now knowing that we must depart from this school of today into a new land of tomorrow and being of sound mind and failing memories for history dates, publish this, our last will and testament. We hope this will is one that will long remain in the hearts and minds of the ones that are left behind.

Carol Coad--Wills her radiant smile to Rosalee Maddox, and her slender figure to Carol Jones.

Roy Lee Palmer--Wills his ability to get a girl and keep her to Merl Gager and his speedy careful driving to JoAnn Siruta. He also wills his innumerous dates to Eldon Gager.

Melvin Adkinson--Wills his courage and his romantic ways to Jackie Hoar, keep praying Jackie. Also his ability to get the car to Robert LeFort.

Richard Strutt--Wills his many girl friends and his outstanding characteristic's in athletics to Altie Orr, and his careful driving to Farrell Merriman who could certainly use it.

Donald Hale--Wills his brown and black Ford, much used for sliding corners, in pickups and playing ditchum, to Eugene Lala, who is following his footsteps very closely. He also wills his ability as a master mind mechanic to Jack O'Rorke.

Jane Dix--Wills her ability to get and keep a man to Patty Kollman, and her troubles of getting out of the house at night to JoAnn Banks.

Arlyne Hoar--Wills her secret formula for obtaining an engagement ring to JoAnn Siruta, and her ability to keep quiet at the right times to the Junior Class.

Richard Russ--Wills his ability to play basketball and also his excellent health and his extra bottles of Hadacol to Duane McCall. He also wills his ability to get by without having his American History to Jim Miller.

Grace Breckenridge--Wills her loud voice which disturbs everyone in American History class to Elenore Morrissey, and her height to Shirley Miller.

Betty Lala--Wills her section down at the south end of the hall much used for the start of her romance to Donalee Meyers.

Jacque Westwood--Wills her ability to get along with Mr. Norris to Virginia Boulanger and her healthy appetite to Donna Williams.

Neta June Palmer--Wills her ability to get a share in the U.S. army to Louise Mason and her ability to get a man from Stockton to Jolene Pauley.

Betty Williams--Wills her lady like manners to Mona Beanblossom, and Elenore Morrissey and will gladly will 10 lbs. to Donalee Meyers.

Strutt and Hale--Will their ability to get to school on time, stay out of the halls, get along with their teachers and last but not least their honor seats in American History and also their perfect attendance records to Lala and Gager.

Palmer and Russ--Will their private sleeping quarters in the rooms of old W.R.H.S. to Jack Hoar and Jack O'Rorke.

Jane Dix and Arlyne Hoar--Will their ability to keep quiet in study hall and get along with Mr.Norris in typing to Rosilee G. and Fern B. They also will their ability to get to lunch first to the Junior Class especially to Elenore Morrissey who seems to have difficulty getting there before the Seniors.

We nominate and appoint John Alden as executor of this, our last will and testament. He did a poor job of delivering the message of Miles Standish, and we expect him to mess up the excution of this will. So a little advice to the legeatees on the side; don't count too much on your inheritance under the terms of this will.

Class Prophecy

The senior class of 1950 and 1951 are gathering for the first time since graduation, fifteen years ago, at the home of Mrs. Leroy Hutton the former Arlyne Hoar for a renunion.

The first to arrive was Mrs. Vernon Covert, the former Jane Dix, and her five ornery brats. Between the Covert and the Hutton children, there was quite an uproar.

Above the noise was a gentle knock on the door, and who should it be but Professor Russ in his tuxedo, now Dean at the Harvard University. Remembering the very intellectual speeches, we can readily see how he reached the top so fast.

The only two out of the class that united together were Grace Breckenridge and Melvin Adkinson, who now own the Gold Nugget gambling center in Las Vagas. While Melvin is overseeing his business, Grace is busy looking after her ten very timid children.

Two well remembered class mates happened to arrive at the same time. The well known Hadacol salesman, Donald Hale, and Jacque Westwood, who is now a registered nurse. It seems Donnie gives most of his sales talks to Jacque. Whether it is for a wife, or Hadacol we don't know.

Who next should appear but Neta June Palmer, who is now a teacher at the Woodston Grade School. In order to come tonight it was necessary for her to cancel several speaking engagements, including one for the Teachers National Banquet at Philidelphia.

A loud roar and screech of brakes sent everyone rushing to the door and the windows, only to see Richard Strutt the famous hot-rod racer of Southern California, getting calmly out of his car.

Coming up the drive in her convertible, we see the famous movie star, Ava Coadie, we remember her as the friendly little Carol Coad. In her strapless evening gown, she is as beautiful as we remembered her in high school.

Coming in next we see a beautiful mink coat, and who should be wearing it but Betty Williams. She is now head sales woman of the fur coat department in the Macy's exclusive store in New York City.

Roy Lee Palmer was next to arrive. He is now owner of a large cattle ranch in Texas. Due to bad train connections, he had to ride his loyal palomino. Travel was extra slow, as he and his wife had to ride double for the last fifty miles. The other horse had stepped in a prairie dog hole and broke his leg.

The crowd quiets down as Rev. and Mrs. Jack Buttermore walk in the door. Mrs. Buttermore, the former Betty Lala, apoligized for being late, saying they had a last minute wedding to preform, before they could leave.

Knowing the seniors of 1950 and 1951 you can draw your own conclusion on how the rest of the evening was spent.

Class Poem

We the Freshmen of forty-seven,
Entered a place that wasn't heaven.
We lacked the brains, and funds were low,
But boy that class could really go.
We were ripping along in the middle of the year,
After the class had hit high gear.
The faculty was just a nervous wreck,
But we and the Sophomores were neck and neck.

Out second year we journeyed back,
But one of our classmates we did lack.
Clorene Bennett was her name,
But we carried on about the same.
We carved our names on all the desks;
Everyone said we were general pests.
We slid down the banasters and ran down the halls,
And were called to the office after all our brawls.

Into our junior year we did glide,
Flying low and flying wide.
Beginning of the year we had a play;
It was really good, and thats no hay.
"Swamp House" was its mysterious name;
We were surprised at the number that came.
We had a banquet that couldn't be beat;
The scenery was nice and the food a treat.

When we returned our final year
The Ensley twins did not appear.
Thirteen came back with lots of knowledge;
Some will no doubt go on to college.
The initation was a successful event,
Which some of the Freshmen would rather of not spent.
Much time was spent on the annual this year.
We think its the best thats been put out here.
Though we had many errors and grief,
After it was finished it was a relief.
After the annual we started our play
We practiced this mystery many a day.
The public liked it, we had a large crowd.
This made us happy and also proud.
The scene of the banquet which the Juniors planned
Was Hawian, and it was really grand.

And then came the one great day
When they allowed us to sneak away.
We started early raring to go,
Later viewed the mountains covered with snow.
We hated to come back, with so much to do.
But we thought it over, would'nt you?
We received our diplomas on the 13th of May;
Everyone in the class, was happy and gay.
We're glad to graduate from Good Old Woodston High,
But our High School days we'll miss, and thats no lie.

CLASS SONG

1st. Verse
Good old high school, we'll miss you, and how,
Just think of the fun we've had up to now,
The ball games and parties that really were grand,
But we have to leave and take a new stand, saying:

Chorus:
So long it's been good to know you,
So long it's been good to know you,
So long it's been good to know you,
We hope you'll remember us all some how,
But we've got to be drifting along.

2nd. Verse
Some times we have said that we all hated school,
We were only acting a fool,
We really don't mind it as much as we say,
But we'll really miss it when it's out in May. So it's:

Chorus:

3rd. Verse
We'll graduate soon and I know we'll be glad,
Yet some of us will feel rather sad,
To think we are leaving and not comming back,
To run the halls, and tear up jack. Now it's:

Chorus:

(Tune of So Long)

THE PHANTOM SPINSTER----------???????

SYNOPISIS

The play begins with the arrival of Mary Marston who has come to spend the Christmas holidays with her Aunt Mattie who has been asleep for a solid year. She entered this coma immediatly after the death of her sister Hattie, who supposedly died from heart failure. Hattie was a dominant, selfish person and would not allow her sister to marry Doctor Spaulding, the family physician, who was in love with her. After the arrival of Kitty Corey, Mary's roommate, and Kitty's fiance Donald Rhodes, a newspaper reporter, it was discovered that Hattie had joined a Lonesome Hearts club, corresponed with, and sent money to a man named Jerimiah. Finally Doctor Spaulding confessed that Hattie had not died from heart failure. There was reason to suspect nearly every character including Aesop, the weird caretaker, who was always quoting the fables, and Trinka the maid, who told terrifying tales about a green light. Finally the services of Madame Zenda, a spirt mediumn were acquired, and Mattie finally came out of her trance and it was discovered, much to every ones surprise, that Donald Rhodes was Jerimiah and had killed Hattie when she threathened to call the police and expose him.

EDNA DWYER, about 45, a widow	Louise M.
KENNETH DWYER, 16, her young son	Merl G.
ALICIA DWYER, 21, her writer daughter	Virginia B.
ESTHER GILL, 16, the girl next door	Joan B.
LYDIA CARTER, 40, a gossip who learns	Donalee M.
MABLE SHAW, 20, a girl with a secret	Shirley Melton.
STEPHEN OTIS, 20, a young man in love with Mable	David B.
WENDELL OTIS, 45, Stephen's proud father	Richard R.
KAREN DIXON, 45, a thoughtless mother	Jo Ann S.
HOPE DIXON, 19, her timid daughter	Shirley Miller.
TALBOT DIXON, 17, the resentful son	Eugene L.
ABRETHA THORN, 50, an eccentric	Patty K.
HELEN HEATHER, a movie star who appears to be 25	Elenore M.

You see, the story of the play concerns a young lady who writes a novel which she calls "False Faces." She calls it that because she has seen how all her friends and neighbors act one way in public and behave another way in their private lives. And the book becomes a best seller, which gives the play its title. Unfortunately for the young authoress, however, her acquaintances resent being written about and how it all came out made a very interesting story.

Freshmen Initation

September 15, 1950 was a very exciting day for ten freshmen who spent the entire day being tortured by the dignified seniors. During the day they were dressed in various costumes which were very amusing. At eleven-thirty the student body and faculty members enjoyed a program presented by the insignificient freshmen. The program consisted of musical numbers, nursery rhymes and stunts. During the noon hour the superior Seniors paraded the humble freshmen through main street and back to school for dinner. The afternoon was spent with the freshmen carrying the Seniors books to classes and kneeling to say the "sound off" speech prepared by the seniors.

Scared stiff, the verdant freshmen arrived for the hilarious evening to follow. The freshmen were honored with a feast of pigs eyes, raw eggs, worms, vinegar and onions. After the banquet was gently shaken down by a ride in a culvert, they then received a free ride in a roller coaster which ended with a splash in a tank of water. After the freshmen had so willingly entertained, the Seniors served refreshments of pop and ice cream goups to the entire group.

Basketball

The season started with two letter men, Strutt and Russ. This year was again a bad luck year as far as wins and losses were concerned. However, the boys played some very close and exciting games.

The second team also had a poor season with two wins and fifteen losses.

The elected Honorary Captain was Richard Strutt.

We, the Coyote Staff, wish to take this means of thanking one and all for their splended cooperation and assistance in the successful publishing of our high school year book. We give special thanks to the faculty members, students, and advertisers for their kind cooperation in acquiring the needed materials and pictures for this book. With pleasure we present this annual as a lasting memento of the 1950-'51 school term.
